FATE OF RACING UP TO MERCHANTS OF PADUCAH NOW

Association Will be Asked to Help Out With This Year's Meets.

Fourth of July Will See Some Contests.

FALL FAIR AND RACE MEET

The fate of racing in Paducah will be decided at a meeting of the Retail Merchants' association next Monday night, when an effort will be made for the raising of $1,375 for the payment of rent on the race track. The sum needed $750 has been subscribed, and the horse lovers intend that the remainder of the sum shall be raised. At the meeting it is intended also to consider plans for a fair and races next September.

A deficit of $375 remains on account of the rent of the track for last year, and this year the owners will not lease the course unless the contract is made for two years. The rent will be $500 a year paid in advance, and the association will need $875 to pay before the contract is taken, although it is proposed to have the remaining $500 subscribed. The meeting with the merchants will be held in the hopes that the remainder of the sum can be subscribed.

It is planned to have the regular races next July, continuing for several days, including a big program for the Fourth. This is the annual races, while in September it is hoped to have races combined with a fair, something that Paducah has not had in many years. Prizes will be offered for the best farm animals, although it is probable that prizes will not be offered for specimens from the vegetable kingdom.

The Matinee club will have a program for the summer, and the fans will be given a taste of the sport frequently. Already there are as many as a dozen horses in training on the track, and should the debt be cleared away there is no doubt that Paducah will enjoy some fine sport. Mr. Gus Thompson, who is president of the Matinee club, and Mr. George Goodman, the secretary, are working hard to make racing a go in Paducah.

Hot Grease Burns Child.

Maxon Mills, Ky., March 26. (Special.)—Alby Carroll, the two-year-old son of Ofman Carroll, the railroad agent, burned his right hand last night with hot grease. The child was playing in the kitchen, when a skillet was overturned and the hot grease was thrown on the child. Today the child was resting easily.

Hotel Craig Sale

The sale of the Hotel Craig, Fifth and Jefferson streets, will be held April 12, according to the notices of the master commissioner. The sale will be held at the court house and it will be sold to the highest bidder following the orders of the circuit court in the case of the Globe Bank and Trust company against the Wilson estate.

POLICE BELIEVE MRS. CULBERTSON KILLED HERSELF

Vincennes, Ind., March 26.—Police advance the theory in the case of Jesse Lee Culbertson's mysterious death that she was a victim of a strange madness that led her to write herself the threatening letters received before dying of carbolic acid poisoning. She was bound and gagged in the back shed. Police think she imitated the writing of her husband's former sweetheart, who the police claim is located in Chicago and willing to return to clear her name.

Police last night found the evidence not conclusive that the woman killed herself. Chief of Police Evans says she attempted suicide twice prior to her marriage. The family say it is murder.

The coroner's inquest will be held today. Etta Longwell, suspected in the mysterious death case of Mrs. Culbertson, vigorously denies being implicated. She lives with her mother in Chicago. Police say they don't want her. They are satisfied it is a case of suicide. Vincennes friends of Mrs. Longwell will make an effort to have her come tonight and a declaration against her.

Night Rider Warnings Are Sent to Croppers on Farm in Christian Co. and Owner is Given Instructions

City of Mayfield Wins Case and Validity of School Bonds is Upheld by Court of Appeals.

Hopkinsville, Ky., March 26. (Special.)—Notes signed "Night Riders," were left at the gates of Frank Long and Garnett Fields, croppers on the farm of John C. Barnes in this county. The notes warned the men to get out or bear the consequences, and were accompanied by hickory switches and matches. Barnes also was warned to get rid of Long.

Child Burns to Death.

Murray, Ky., March 26.—The four-year-old child of George Mayfield, of the New Providence section, was burned to death. The father was engaged in burning off an old field and the child followed him to his work. In returning to the house the baby's clothing was ignited by burning rubbish and the child was burned to death before assistance reached it.

Troops All Leave.

Frankfort, Ky., March 26. (Special.)—All troops were ordered to leave the dark tobacco district, and the last detachment at Eddyville has gone home.

Another Dry County.

Indianapolis, March 26.—Elk county voted dry yesterday. Two-thirds of the state is dry. Only one of the sixty counties voted wet.

James A. Smith.

Mr. James A. Smith, 25 years old, died Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at his home, 1825 Meyers street, after a long illness of consumption. Mr. Smith had been confined to his bed four weeks, but before that time had been ill. He was employed by the Paducah Coal and Lumber company but had not been able to work for several weeks. Mr. Smith was born and reared in this city and is survived by his parents: Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Smith, two sisters, Mrs. Nancy B. Walker and Mrs. Murie Todd, both of Paducah, and two brothers, Mr. Ernest Smith and Mr. Fred Smith. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence in Mechanicsburg. The burial was at Oak Grove cemetery.

Shoots Her Husband

St. Louis, March 26.—Anton Stebe, 30 years old, was shot in the arm by his wife, Ida, this morning as he kissed their four-year-old son at 3210 Chouteau avenue, her home. They had been separated and he went to see the children. He is badly wounded.

RUSSIAN WOMAN CONFESSES THAT SHE MURDERED 300 MEN IN LAST 30 YEARS

Samara, Russia, March 26.—Police today are investigating the career of Madame Popova, charged with whole sale murder of undesirable husbands. She confessed to killing 300 men in 30 years. Though the authorities characterize it as weird romancing, they believe she is the greatest murderer in Russian history.

Belgrade, March 26.—The belief is universal here today that King Peter will accept the resignation of his son, the Crown Prince George, since the cabinet decided that Prince

G. W. WARREN

DIES AFTER LINGERING ILLNESS
AT HIS HOME.

Will Be Buried at Princeton Where He Was Born and Reared.

Mr. G. W. Warren, 37 years old, died last night at 11:25 o'clock at his home, 1305 Jackson street, after a lingering illness of consumption. He had been confined to his bed just one month before his death last night. Mr. Warren had been a resident of this city for five years coming from Princeton, where he was reared. He was a car repairer by trade and employed at the Illinois Central railroad shops. He was a member of the Methodist church and a member of the Odd Fellows lodge and the Carpenters' union. Mr. Warren was married three years ago to Miss Ida Nance, of this city, and is survived by his wife and one son two years old, Guy Warren. He was a very well known man in this city and had a large number of friends.

The body of Mr. Warren will be taken to Princeton tomorrow morning on the 7:45 train. The funeral and burial will be held tomorrow afternoon at Princeton.

Mrs. Annie E. Hubbard.
Mrs. Annie E. Hubbard, wife of Mr. B. T. Hubbard, of Water Valley, died this morning at 8 o'clock at her home after a lingering illness of several months.

Mrs. Hubbard is the mother of Messrs. S. T. Hubbard and W. J. Hubbard, of this city, and has visited her sons here. She was gentle and unassuming, but possessed strong individuality and was a fine type of Christian womanhood and devoted motherhood. Beside her husband and sons, she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Mary Stokes, of Fulton, and Mrs. Cora Farmer, of Water Valley, both known in Paducah.

Mr. S. T. Hubbard went to Water Valley last night. Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hubbard and Mrs. Samuel Hubbard went today. The funeral will be held some time tomorrow.

Tobacco Rushing In

Tobacco sales at Bohmer's loose leaf warehouse this morning were 25,000 pounds. Tobacco brought from $3.90 to $8.50. There were no rejections. A big sale will be held tomorrow morning, as 25 hogheads of Tennessee river tobacco were received this morning off the steamer Kentucky. The Royal brought in three wagons and one hoghead of tobacco from the Ohio river this morning.

KELLY CASE SENT BACK TO TRIGG TO BE TRIED THERE

The case of the commonwealth against John W. Kelly, former master commissioner of Trigg county under Judge Cook, charged with misappropriation of the state's funds, was transferred back to the Trigg county circuit court this morning by Judge William Reed. The case was transferred to the McCracken county court, because of the turbulent conditions in Trigg county. Affidavits from many witnesses and persons were introduced before Judge Reed to show that there is no disorder or night riding in the county to prevent a jury from rendering a fair verdict. An effort was made by the defense to procure a dismissal on the grounds that all the money that was alleged to have been misappropriated had been paid back, and that the state would be put to a heavy expense in the prosecution.

Castro Sails.
Bordeaux, March 26.—Castro sailed today on the Guadeloupe for Trinidad, accompanied by his wife, brother and secretary and attendants.

Abruzzi Sails.
Marseilles, March 26.—Duke Abruzzi sailed on the Oceana for Bombay to begin his Himalayan exploration to take eight months. He will visit the United States later.

Think It a Joke.
Pittsburgh, March 26.—Lawrence Gibson, 14 years old, son of a bricklayer, is missing. His father received a letter, asking a ransom of $25,000. Police believe it is a joke.

Taft Breaks Down President's Chair.
Washington, March 26.—While President Taft was sitting yesterday afternoon in the office chair which President Roosevelt used to occupy, it broke down under heavy weight. A chair has been ordered built especially for Mr. Taft with strong brace rods.

Calhoun Trial

San Francisco, March 26.—The jury is again temporarily filled at the Calhoun bribery case after 72 days of questioning. Six jurors were selected permanently.

WOMAN WHO STOLE BILLY WHITLA IS WELL CONNECTED

Identified as Cast Off Daughter of Chicago Man—Well Educated.

Go Back to Pennsylvania for Trial.

EXCITEMENT HAS DIED DOWN

Pittsburgh, March 26.—J. S. Boyle in charge of officers, left this afternoon for Mercer county to face the charge of kidnapping Billy Whitla. Because there are no accommodations for the woman, Helen Falkner, will remain here until their trial is called.

May Be His Daughter.
Chicago, March 26.—W. F. McDermott, a retired fireman, today declared he is unable to state whether Helen Falkner, charged with kidnapping Billy Whitla, was his daughter. He had a daughter, Anna, educated at a convent in Madison, Wis. She left home, following a quarrel with her father. He is not going to Cleveland and will not send money or a lawyer, he said.

Is Rich Woman.

Cleveland, O., March 26.—That the woman identified by "Willie" Whitla as one of the kidnappers is Anna McDermott, of Chicago, daughter of a wealthy business man of that city, was declared by her uncle, a wealthy vessel owner of this city. This vessel owner, half-brother of the woman's mother, Mrs. Catherine McDermott, of Chicago, saw the mysterious prisoner, known as the wife of James K. Boyle, of Sharon, whom "Billy" declares carried him away from the Sharon school house last Tuesday.

He visited the police station, and, unknown to the woman, watched her and heard her voice.

"She is the daughter of my half-sister," he told the police.

He had been called into the case by Chief Kohler, who gained from the mysterious prisoner a thread of her life history. She has been disowned by her father for three years.

Was Cast Off.

She is said to have left her home to go on the stage and to have sorely displeased her father by so doing.

Her parent, a wealthy man, cast her off. Who the father is the vessel man has not said, nor could he be induced to do so. He told who his sister is, however, and said the prisoner's brother, William McDermott, is in a Chicago bank, and that she has two sisters, one recently married, living in Chicago, and another in an Indiana town. The vessel owner's brother, also a resident of this city, is aware of the girl's identity. Anna McDermott was born in Chicago 22 years ago.

That she was given a convent education and that she was talented, even brilliant—the life of her circle—until three years ago, when a change came, her uncle said.

Two Congressmen Almost Come to Blows During the Discussion of Lumber Schedules in Payne Bill

Standard Oil "Job" is Given Lively Airing by Representatives and One Declares it
Was a Midnight Deal.

Washington, March 26.—Fordney, of Michigan, spoke today in the house on the tariff. "Some schedules are below the standard of protection commanded by the Republican national platform," he said. "I hope amendments will be presented." He favored the tariff on wool, also an increase of the duty on imported cotton fabrics.

A rough and tumble fight was narrowly averted on the floor of the house today. Byrd, of Mississippi, was asking Fordney questions relative to the lumber combination. He intimated that Fordney's bill had part of it. "That's all buncombe," Fordney said. "I don't know a damned thing about it."

Byrd rushed for Fordney. Fordney drew off his coat, but friends prevented a fight. Over 70 per cent of the labor employed in the British Columbia lumber mills are originals, was the statement in the house today by Humphrey, of Washington, in urging protection on lumber for the northwest. He declared the cost per thousand is 55 cents, while in Canada with Chinese labor it is 25.

Vreeland's Admission.

Washington, March 26.—The voluntary admission by Vreeland, of New York, that was to some extent responsible for the retention in the Payne tariff bill of the countervailing duty on oil was the climax of the discussion of the tariff bill in the house. Vreeland had sat for some time and heard various insinuations that that duty, which some have characterized as a "joker," was to be levied solely in the interest of the Standard Oil.

This he denied, and explained that his action was in response to requests from thousands of his oil producing constituents and in behalf of five hundred thousand others engaged in the same business. The debate on the schedule called forth some little criticism of Standard Oil by Kustermann, of Wisconsin, and others. In the course of the day numerous speeches were made touching the tariff, on the question generally, and many of the schedules in particular. Arguments from the Democratic standpoint were for a tariff of revenue only while the Republicans who spoke attacked such schedules as those on wool, wood, pulp, print paper, crude petroleum.

At 6:05 the house adjourned until tomorrow when, according to the general understanding a decision will be reached to meet thereafter at 10 and remain in session until 5, at which time a recess will be taken until 8 and the debate continue three hours. In all likelihood the general debate on the bill will conclude Wednesday of next week.

The Oil Deal.

The alleged midnight switch from the ways and means committee of tariff schedules to suit the Standard Oil company, freely charged as a part of the deal under which Speaker Cannon was elected and his rules adopted, was brought to the attention of the house by Representative Kustermann, of Wisconsin, a Republican.

"I had the positive assurance up to the last minute," said Mr. Kustermann, "that this little joker that annually pours more than $12,000,000 into the coffers of the Standard Oil had been put out of existence. Imagine my surprise to find it back in the bill, doing business for Standard Oil as in former years."

"I don't know why or how it was done," continued Mr. Kustermann, "I have worked for more than a year to get this little joker repealed. I thought I had won my fight. I was told I had by those who knew. And then suddenly I find I have not won at all, and the fight must be made over again."

Adds Nothing to Treasury.
"The countervailing duty on crude petroleum takes more than $12,000,000 annually out of the pockets of the consumers and gives it to Standard Oil. It adds from three to four cents a gallon on kerosene and does not help the treasury one dollar."

"Russia is the only nation that has a large supply of petroleum to sell to other nations and has a protective tariff, but does not sell at unreasonable rates to consumers."

"In 1905 the Standard sold oil in the United States at 9 1/2 cents a gallon and in England at 5 1/2 cents a gallon. All foreign products of petroleum are kept out by this duty and the people are put at the mercy of the Standard Oil monopoly. In ten years this little joker has brought into the coffers of the Standard Oil $139,943,880."

"The profit of 50 to 60 per cent on the business of the Standard is unreasonable and excessive. The loss of the profits from the countervailing duty would cut the dividends a little. There is not an independent oil concern in business in the United States that could live one day without the consent of the Standard Oil. The Standard Oil never paid more for crude oil than it was obliged to.

GRAND NATIONAL.

Liverpool, March 26.—Lutteur II, a French horse, won the Grand National R. W. Pars' Judas, second; F. Bibby's Canbe on Mason, third. The Grand National race took place today. The procession started for the track before daylight to see the running of the blue ribbon event. The course was stiffer than ever. Thirty-two starters were carded but only six finished.

No Danger From Mexico.

"There is no danger from the Mexican oil wells to be feared by American producers. If we can get oil cheaper from Mexico the people of this country should have the benefit of it."

"I favor giving protection to the American people against the extortion of the Standard Oil and other trusts. Let us regulate the Standard Oil by removing this joker. We have failed in the courts and by commissions."

"I suppose the great lawyers of the Standard Oil have succeeded in convincing members of the ways and means committee that the joker must be left in to save the Standard Oil from financial ruin."

Chairman Payne sat silent during this attack on his bill, but Smith, of California, and Wheeler, of Pennsylvania, went to the defense of the countervailing duty and claimed it to be in the interest of the independent refineries.

Defends Wool Schedule.

Ralph Cole, of Ohio, treated the house to a lengthy defense of the wool schedules, giving exhibitions of the various kinds and classes of wools affected. The clerks' desks were covered with fleeces, flannels and woolen goods, and looked like a bargain counter in a department store.

Pig Iron Schedule Right.
Mr. Underwood said that he believed the pig iron schedules were as near a revenue basis as they could be made. The cost of production abroad, the freight rates of $2.85 and the duty of $2.50 brought the total cost of imported pig iron to about the same price as the home product.

He declared, however, that schedules on round iron and steel wire were ridiculous, and that the tariff of 1 cent a pound provided in the Payne bill is as prohibitive as that of 1 1/2 cents in the Dingley law.

In the Senate.

Washington, March 26.—The senate was in session only an hour and fifteen minutes and adjourned until Monday. Practically all the time except 15 minutes was spent in executive session and was devoted to the introduction of bills, resolutions and memorials. Culberson insisted that memorials from the states be read, instead of being only printed. One from North Dakota, asking for a reduction on the tariff, except on farm products, seemingly pleased him greatly.

The only action taken was the passage of a resolution allowing the rotunda of the capitol to be used for ceremonies connected with the transfer of the remains of Major L'Enfant from the farm in Maryland to the Arlington cemetery.

Appointments Made by President.
Washington, March 26.—The president made the following nominations:

Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to Italy—John G. A. Leishman, of Pennsylvania.

Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Spain—Henry Clay Ide, of Vermont.

Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Argentine Republic—Charles H. Sherrill, of New York.

United States Judge Western District of Pennsylvania—Charles P. Orr, of Pennsylvania.

United States Attorneys—William G. Wheeler, western district of Wisconsin; Cornelius D. Murane, Third division, District of Alaska.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Labor—Ormsby McHarm, of North Dakota.

Collector of Customs, District of Sandusky, O.—Charles A. Judson, of Ohio.

Mr. Judson is generally known as a "Vorys man," and his reappointment is declared to be a victory for that wing of the party in Ohio. Judson was appointed four years ago. It is stated, at the instance of Senator Foraker, but went over to the Taft forces in the fight last summer for control of the state.

BANKS MAY BUILD THEIR NEW HOME DURING THE YEAR

City National at Fourth and Broadway and First at Third Street.

Consideration of Projects Now Underway.

ARCHITECTS ARE FIGURING

It comes from a reliable source that the directors of the City National bank have begun to consider plans for the erection of a skyscraper at the northeast corner of Fourth street and Broadway. Several years ago the building would have been built, but the two-story buildings on the location were under lease and the occupants refused to cancel the contracts. Hence the directors had to give up the idea of a large office building, but next year the lease on the buildings will expire and the directors have begun the discussion of erecting the building.

Directors of the First National bank are said to be divided on the proposition of erecting a skyscraper office building on the southwest corner of Third street and Broadway. Plans for a ten-story building have been completed, but the financial depression caused a cessation of building. Some of the directors favor the erection of a building, according to the plans that have been completed, while some of the directors are more conservative, and want to erect a substantial bank and office building on the location, but not so high. However, in the next 15 months it is thought that work on the buildings may be under way.

Architects from other cities as well as the local architects have been consulted about the proposed buildings. The erection of the proposed buildings during the next two years would be a boon to the city, as this year much construction work has been done in the business district, aside from the fact that stores in the retail districts have been repaired and overhauled.

Tulsa Looking Up.

Tulsa, Okla., March 26.—It is rumored the Prairie Oil and Gas company has made an offer for a prominent corner and will erect an office building to be headquarters for the oil field. The headquarters are now at Independence, Kas.

Los Angeles Election

Los Angeles, March 26.—The recall election held today indicates the highest vote in the history of the city. Politicians are urging the defeat of George Alexander Lincoln, a Roosevelt Republican, for a faction candidate.

H. P. JOHNSON, OF CALVERT CITY, KY., DIES SUDDENLY

Calvert City, Ky., March 26. (Special.)—H. P. Johnson, 57 years old, one of the most prominent men of Marshall county, died last night at 7:20 o'clock, following an attack of apoplexy yesterday morning. Mr. Johnson was a retired merchant, and in good circumstances. He had been in ill health several years, but was able to be out. He was stricken suddenly yesterday morning and never rallied from the shock. He was a director in the Bank of Calvert City, besides owning stock in other business enterprises. Mr. Johnson was unmarried but he leaves on brother, Dr. A. W. Johnson, of Calvert city, and two sisters, Mrs. Ella Flowers, of Calvert City, and Mrs. Edna Huffine, of Paducah, a niece. Mr. Johnson was an elder in the Cumberland Presbyterian church. The funeral was held this afternoon with burial in the Wilson cemetery.

Singer Talks

Evidence of Positive Supremacy

- There are forty-six manufacturers of sewing machines in America.
- How many can you name? How many did you ever hear of?
- One name comes to the mind of every woman immediately—the Singer—and there's a very good reason.
- The Singer makes and sells as many machines in a year as all the other forty-five manufacturers combined.
- The Singer Sewing Machine is known as the best sewing machine in every country on the globe. There is a Singer store in every city of the world. Why?
- Because, when you buy a Singer you do not buy simply so much wood and steel—you buy the latest result of the longest and best experience.

Ringling Brothers Now Have Their Long Desired Monopoly of the Circus.

New York, March 26.—The Ringling Brothers, who have advanced from a one-ring wagon show until they are owners of the greatest tented enterprises the world has ever seen, realized their life's ambition today when their circus opened for the season in Madison Square Garden, where it will continue to show for the entertainment of tens of thousands of Gothamites for the next three weeks, when it will take to the road for the summer.

Ever since their circus attained large proportions the Ringlings have desired to secure an entrance to New York City, but their plans in this direction were balked by the fact that the Barnum & Bailey management had a long-term exclusive contract with the owners of Madison Square Garden, the only place of its kind in the metropolis large enough to accommodate the show. Finally the ambitious brothers from Wisconsin solved the problem by absorbing the Barnum & Bailey show—and the old and well known Sells-Forpaugh show at the same time.

Since the consolidation they have been in a position to show wherever they pleased. To satisfy their old ambition they decided this year to reverse the order of things that has prevailed heretofore and to open in

New York with the Ringling Brothers circus and to start the season in Chicago with the Barnum & Bailey show. To do this it was necessary to bring the Ringling circus a distance of over a thousand miles from the winter quarters at Baraboo, Wis., and at the same time transport the Barnum & Bailey aggregation from Bridgeport, Conn., to Chicago.

GUIDES BARRED

BECOME ANGRY AND VENT THEIR SPITE IN WORDS.

Gossipy Notes From National Capital and What the Officials Are Doing.

Washington, March 26.—The guides who steer visitors about the capital and describe to them the wonders of government buildings and historic spots, are not at all pleased with certain innovations recently put in force at the white house. They are not allowed to accompany their visiting charges into the east room or the corridors of the mansion, and frequently, when the tourists leave them for this trip into the interior of the presidential home, they forget to return to their protection and profit.

One of the maddest of the state guides is "Patsy" Williams, a thin, brown faced little fellow, who has been showing visitors about Washington for twenty years. He believed the new rules were made to operate against him personally, and frequently stands outside the big front portico to revile the ushers within the building. "They are the robbers who have taken the bread and butter out of my mouth," he cries.

When President Taft came in, and replaced the uniformed policemen at the front door with white shirted, silver buttoned negro butlers, Patsy's wrath was given another lift. "Look there, look there," he exclaimed, when he brought his first party of tourists past the door and saw the colored men standing behind the glass portico. "The progress of modern improvements! Black men at the door of the white house!"

Reindeer Mail Routes.

Reindeer mail routes will soon be the regular means of carrying the mails over the frozen fields of the Arctic regions, if the Bureau of Education develops its present plans. The bureau is a sort of "universal legatee" for all things pertaining to Alaska, and the reindeer industry has grown to such proportions that it will soon be a commercial factor there.

Reindeers already carry the mails south from Point Barrow to Inland river, a distance of several hundred miles, every winter. The reindeer mail is the only way the people of the northern port have to communicate with the outside world when the sea is blocked with ice. It has proved very successful because the reindeer can travel a long way and then be herded out on the ice fields to forage, without any shelter. The animal's shaggy coat protects it from the worst Arctic blizzards, and its sharp hoofs enable it to get moss and grasses from beneath the snow. Several more routes will be established this summer.

His Spokesman.

A group of newspaper correspondents was being received by the new secretary of the treasury, Franklin MacVeagh. They were congratulating him upon his selection of "Bobby" Bailey, who had long been one of the press gang at the capital, as his private secretary.

"He'll be my spokesman," explained the secretary, nodding towards Bailey, who was trying to conceal his blushes. Then with a twinkle in his eye, MacVeagh added, "but I expect to do some talking myself, you know."

Attorney General Wickersham is showing himself to be a prince of entertainers.

Every day he has some official acquaintance as his guest at luncheon. One time it is a cabinet officer, another day it is an assistant secretary who sits opposite him at the table. It is no hurry-up lunch, either, for he eats at one of the best hotels in the city, and has already shown that Cushman's Kangaroo.

Representative Cushman, of Washington, wears a gold miniature of a kangaroo in the lapel of his coat. "I got it when on my recent visit to Panama," he explained the other day to a party of official friends. "I am now a member of the Order of the Kangaroo, organized on the Isthmus and composed of some of the finest fellows ever," he continued. "I made a speech there, and for some reason it made a hit and they made me a member."

Pekin.

Pekin is a city of variegated religious complexion, according to the results of a census of the denominations received at the state department from Minister Rockhill. The census, which was taken by order of the Chinese ministry of the interior, shows that there are eleven or twelve Christian churches or temples out of a total of 1,049. There were 1,553 Buddhist priests, 133 Taoist priests, 102 nuns, 934 students, 795 servants and 15,445 lodgers in the religious institutions. Minister Rockhill adds that the number of Buddhist priests does not include, according to his opinion, 500 Mongol lamas. Nor do the census results include 16 Mohammedan mosques nor any of the numerous ancestral temples.

Wireless Telephones.

General Allen, chief of the army signal corps, and his assistant, Major Squier, are inspecting various wireless telephone stations and equipments with the view of selecting a type for installation at the coast artillery stations of the army. It is claimed by the inventors that the stations at which the instruments are installed can transmit messages from fifty to one hundred miles.

Specifications will be prepared by the signal corps for the addition of the telephones to the coast artillery post equipment. Congress appropriated $30,000 for this purpose. If the system is as effective as is claimed, land forces, operating in conjunction with forts, will be in instant communication with fort headquarters.

LIFE OF A PIMPLE

Complexions Cleared and Pimples Disappear Overnight Without Trouble.

The dispensers of poslam, a new skin discovery, ask that notice be given that no one is urged to purchase it without first obtaining an experimental package. Those who have tried it will find that the fifty-cent box, on sale at Gilbert's and all drug stores, is sufficient to cure the worst cases of eczema, where the surface affected is not too large. The itching ceases on first application. It will also cure acne, tetters, blotches, scaly scalp, hives, barbers' and every other form of itch, including itching feet. Being flesh-colored and containing no grease, the presence of poslam on exposed surfaces, such as the face and hands, is not perceptible. Water and soap cannot be used in connection with it, as these irritate and prolong skin troubles, sometimes even causing them.

As to the experimental package of poslam, it can be had free of charge by mail of the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York. It alone is sufficient to clear the complexion overnight, and to rid the face of pimples in twenty-four hours.

MRS. LORILLORD
KILLS HERSELF

Dies of Asphyxiation in Her Fashionable Home.

Known That She Had Fits of Despondency—Servants Declare She Died of Heart Failure.

WAS WEARY OF GAY SOCIETY.

Washington, March 26.—Mystery today surrounds the death of Caroline Hamilton Lorillard, wife of Pierce Lorillard, Jr. The house was closed to reporters and police alike. Investigators make slow progress. The burial probably will be this evening in New York.

Washington, D. C., March 26.—Weary of the gay whirl of society, and face to face, as she believed, with years of physical suffering, Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, Jr., aged 49, wife of the tobacco magnate, committed suicide by asphyxiation at her home near the fashionable Dupont Circle in this city. In spite of the coroner's certificate of death by suicide, the members of the family declare that Mrs. Lorillard died of heart failure.

At about 8:30 this morning the butler in the Lorillard residence detected an odor of gas permeating the rooms. With little difficulty the origin of the fumes were traced to Mrs. Lorillard's apartments. Opening the door of the bath room, just off her apartments, the butler was horrified to behold the body of the mistress stretched lifeless on the floor. Her face was turned to the mat on the floor.

Extreme reticence is being maintained by the Lorillard family and all others who possess information concerning the sudden death.

Inquiry at the residence met with the declaration that Mrs. Lorillard had not committed suicide. "She died of heart failure," retorted the servants.

Mrs. Lorillard was subject to frequent attacks of despondency, it is said. Mr. Lorillard stated that in his opinion the death of his wife was not due to suicidal intent, but was the result of an accident.

CATARRH MUST GO

And Hawking, Spitting, Snuffles Must Go Too.

Hyomel (pronounced High-o-mel) will give the sufferer from catarrh joyful relief in five minutes.

It is such a remarkable cure, and so positive in its action, that Gilbert's drug store goes so far as to guarantee it to cure catarrh or money back.

A complete outfit, which consists of a hard rubber pocket inhaler, a bottle of Hyomel, and a unique dropper for filling the inhaler, only costs one dollar, and if an extra bottle is afterwards needed the price is only 50 cents.

Hyomel is a healing, antiseptic balsam, taken from the mighty eucalyptus trees in the health-giving forests of Australia, where diseases of the respiratory tract are unknown.

All the sufferer has to do is to inhale the antiseptic air of Hyomel over the inflamed parts where the germs are entrenched, three or four times a day.

It cures coughs, colds, asthma, hay fever and croup without stomach dosing.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

WHEN SPAIN RULED

DECLARATION BY COMMISSIONER OF PORTO RICO.

Coffee Industry Was Ruined by American Occupation—Appeals to President Taft.

Washington, March 26.—That Porto Rico was governed better under Spanish rule than under American administration; that the Spanish-American war and the consequent occupation of the island by the United States has ruined the coffee industry, the most important in the island, and that the executive council composed largely of Americans, is responsible entirely for the present crisis were the declarations made by Louis Munoz Rivera, chairman of the commission now here. The commission was appointed by the house of delegates to lay before President Taft, congress and the American people the reasons for the existing conditions in the island and to ask for concessions from this country, both in regard to the form of government for the island and on the tariff proposition.

Commissioner Rivera claims that all the Porto Ricans ask for is justice, and that the Americans are not giving them this. He said the house of delegates has been made practically a nonentity by the executive council, corresponding to the upper house, and that the upper body refused to listen to the house of delegates in the recent extraordinary session of the Porto Rican congress called by Gov. Post, even when the lower body was perfectly willing to make all necessary concessions in legislation.

Commissioner Larrinaga, delegate from Porto Rico to congress, will endeavor tomorrow to arrange for an interview for the commission with President Taft. The latter has the power to straighten out the situation, but the desired change in government would require congressional amendment to the Foraker act, by which the island is governed.

"It behooves the executive council," said Mr. Rivera, "to solve the problem without submitting it to the consideration of either the president or the congress of the United States. The lower house did all it could within its dignity to reach an agreement; the executive council was stubborn. The incompatibility of both houses will be a source of future troubles, which the government should adjust now for the benefit of all concerned."

After spending several weeks among the Indians in Oklahoma and the Southwest, Emerson Hough has a notable article in Hampton's Magazine for April, setting forth the tragic career of the redman from the days of Lewis and Clark down to the present time. It is a story full of romance and pathos, relieved here and there with flashes of humor. The tribal rolls of the Five Nations, for instance, says Mr. Hough, offer strange reading, and tell of the admixture of red and white. Daily Thought.

An ounce of seeing it yourself is better than hearing others tell it.

No man need feel elated over applause at the conclusion of a five-hour speech. It may not be intended for an encore.

There will be little criticism of the appropriation for refurbishing the white house when Taft's successor goes in.

"It is the irony of fate," says the Bowling Green Messenger, "that the same influence that kicked Bradley upstairs should kick our esteemed friend Franks down the scuttle hole."

If the presidency of a bank that starts out with $300,000 capital stock is a "scuttle hole," Franks is in it, all right.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE TARIFF.

We wish we could be sure the minority party in congress would be fair. It would make certain an equitable tariff law. That is something the country, perhaps, never had. The Dingley and McKinley bills contained iniquitous provisions. The Democratic attempt to enact a free trade bill probably hastened Grover Cleveland's death.

Champ Clark, in speaking for the minority to the Payne bill, said his party would not obstruct legislation and declared they came not as partisans, "but as American citizens, all equally interested," etc., etc. Then he proceeded to take such a rank partisan view of the situation as to convince all readers that the principal aim and object of the minority representation in congress is to embarrass the majority for political advantage. His attitude probably will drive liberal Republican representatives back into their party camp for good or evil. For such a course the country will suffer.

There was no doubt concerning the instructions congress received from the nation last fall. The tariff needs revising and the kind of revising was clearly stipulated. By an overwhelming majority the country expressed itself against free trade, so the minority, which represents today nothing but sectionalism, if it would be patriotic and consistent must not obstruct protection. But that protection has been defined.

The Republican party, last summer adopted the Ohio platform, which was drawn at the instance of President Taft. It defines a protective tariff, as levying an import duty based on the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad—and that difference is the difference in wages. The theory is that American manufacturers may charge a price for their goods equal to or little less than that necessarily charged by importers, who must add the tariff to their ordinary profits.

Time was when Republican orators and writers declared gravely that the consumer does not pay the tariff. No one would have the nerve to advance such an argument today; but the things consumed are principally things raised or grown by the American farmer, and the antagonists of the tariff must admit that the tariff is no burden to the ordinary man, or accept the alternative that the American farmer is benefitted by the tariff.

Time was, too, when it was disloyal for a Republican to object that the tariff was too high. Now we are different. We have defined protection, and anything that goes beyond the difference between the cost of production (the wage scale) at home and abroad, is iniquity. Joe Cannon and other congressional relics of a day that is past, must take warning that the American people know what they want and will have it, or get out. It is no disparagement of the protective theory to say that the McKinley and Dingley tariff bills were full of jobs. They were infinitely better for the country than free trade would have been.

The Payne bill can be made honest. Its schedules as submitted by the ways and means committee are improvements on the Dingley schedules in most respects; but there are objectionable features. It would be unfortunate if the bill were railroaded through the house, and sent up to the senate for higher duties.

It is not difficult at this session of congress to understand what a senator conceives his highest duty to be—the highest he can get.

SUN'S EFFECT ON LIFE.

"Wins Contract and Bride; Artist White Will Paint Capitol and Marry Miss Geary."—Headlines at Paducah Sun. Will he be painting it red, maybe?—Life.

SOME STORIES AROUND TOWN

While mailing some reports to Judge William Yost, Eli G. Boone, county court clerk, recalled an interesting experience he had with Judge Yost some years ago. Mr. Boone is a prominent member of the Knights of Honor, an order that flourished in Paducah several years ago, and although one of its younger members Mr. Boone was elected representative to the state lodge, which met in one of the cities in the central part of the state.

It was Mr. Boone's first visit to the state meeting, and he was only known to a few members, including Judge Yost, who then was just beginning to attain recognition in his profession. Present at the meeting were over a score of judges and lawyers now prominent in their profession and known all over the state, but at the meeting they were only budding into their careers. On the day for the election of officers these young attorneys took the floor and speech after speech, well laden with smiles and every figure of speech, were heard by the audience. The orators praised the virtues of each man he nominated and some of the orations were worthy to be preserved.

Mr. Boone was sitting near the rear of the hall when Judge Yost arose and the audience applauded and expected to listen to another fine oration, but in his own way Judge Yost began and his speech was about like this: "Ladies and gentlemen: I want to place in nomination a tall, slim, hungry-looking, ugly country boy. Stand up, Eli, and let the people see you." This was his speech, and so novel and unique was it that Mr. Boone received almost the unanimous vote over his opponent who had been nominated amid the bursts of eloquence.

Mr. Boone filed the office, which was a minor one, well, and several years ago he and Judge Yost represented the state organization at the national meetings. On the trip Judge Yost said: "Eli, when I placed you in nomination that day I had no idea you would win, but I could not just help from making that speech just as I said it."

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM HERE

Tell People How to Get Relief at Small Cost.

Thousands of men and women who have felt the sting and torture of this dread disease, which is no respecter of age, persons, sex, color or rank, will be interested to know that while for many years rheumatism was considered an incurable disease, now it is one of the easiest afflictions of the human body to conquer. Medical science has proven it not a distinct disease in itself, but a symptom caused by inactive kidneys. Rheumatism is uric acid in the blood and other waste products of the system which should be filtered and strained out in the form of urine. The function of the kidneys is to sift these poisons and acids out and keep the blood clean and pure. The kidneys, however, are of sponge-like substance the holes or pores of which will sometimes, either from overwork, cold or exposure become clogged and inactive, and failing in their function of eliminating these poisons from the blood, they remain in the veins, decompose and setting about the joints and muscles, cause the untold suffering and pain of rheumatism and backache, often producing complications of bladder and urinary disease, weakness, etc.

The following simple prescription is said to relieve the worst cases of rheumatism because of its direct action upon the blood and kidneys, relieving to the most severe forms of bladder and urinary troubles: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kava-kava, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal, and at bedtime. The ingredients can be had from any prescription pharmacy, and are absolutely harmless and safe to use at any time.

NECESSARY KITCHEN APRON.

The garment illustrated, is one of the simplest of its kind. The skirt is slightly full and finished with a ruffle at the lower edge, which holds it out from the dress and in this way prevents the skirt from becoming soiled. The body portion covers the front of the waist and extends over the shoulders and down the back. There are many materials which may be used for its construction, but gingham is usually given preference for the reason that it is inexpensive and will stand frequent tubbings and come from the laundry looking equal to new. Mohair is another excellent material, but it is slightly more expensive.

An Indigestion Remedy Free

Many people who are otherwise healthy suffer from indigestion, or dyspepsia. When you consider that the stomach and allied digestive organs are the most important organs of the body, it would seem that a disorder there is to be taken very seriously.

Dyspepsia cannot eat the things they like; food sours in the stomach; then chronic constipation begins, or, as is often the case, you have been constipated all along, and the stools are forced and irregular.

But there is no use letting indigestion go until it becomes chronic and undermines your health. It is good advice to suggest to you that you go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, the wonderful cure for stomach, liver and bowel troubles. That is what C. Fowler, of Carson City, Mich., did and he is well today. Others who did the same and are cured are Ida A. Fortune, of Grand Junction, Tenn.; B. F. Thompson, of St. Louis, Mo., who actually considers that it saved his life. You can obtain a 50-cent or $1 bottle of the druggist, and taken according to directions, it will probably be all you need. It is a liquid, acts gently, never gripes, and besides the laxative effect, contains exceptional tonic properties which tone the stomach, and that is what is especially needed in indigestion.

All sufferers from indigestion who have never used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can obtain a free test bottle by writing the doctor. It will be sent direct to your home without any charge. In this way thousands have proven to their own satisfaction Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the very remedy they needed to cure indigestion. When once you use this grand remedy you will throw violent cathartics, tablets, salts, etc., away.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 507 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

"NO MEAT."—WHAT THEN?

On these days, in Lent, when the command is "No Meat," what then? Why, then Faust Brand Spaghetti, of course.

That is the answer the knowing housewife and cook gives, echoed by members of the family. The fact is "the meat days" cease to appeal in the home when the spaghetti appetite gets a foothold.

Since Faust Brand Spaghetti—clean, wholesome, American made—came into the market, it has become a great American dish. Good in so many different ways—pleasing to every palate—delicious and digestible—easily served and economical; these are some of the reasons for its ever-growing popularity.

It is sold in five or ten cent packages by almost every grocer. A book of Faust recipes free if you write

CANAL WORK

PROGRESS ON ISTHMUS OF PANAMA SINCE FEBRUARY.

More Than Three Million Cubic Yards of Earth Removed From the Ditch.

Canal Zone, March 26.—The grand total of excavation during the month of February was 3,148,879 cubic yards, 224,328 more than were taken out in January, although there were only 23 working days in February as compared with 25 in the previous month. All of this amount except 124,175 cubic yards was taken from the canal prism. Of the grand total for February, 1,879,480 cubic yards were removed by steam shovels and 1,269,399 by dredges. The mean rainfall for the month in the territory in which excavation was in progress was 2.85 inches as compared with 4.39 inches in January and with 1.15 inches in February, 1908.

The average daily excavation in February was 136,908 cubic yards, the highest since American occupation. The highest previous daily average, 133,856 cubic yards, was made in March, 1908, when the highest record of monthly excavation was also made. The daily average for each month for the past 12 months is as follows:

	Cubic Yards.
March, 1908	133,856
April, 1908	131,844
May, 1908	108,157
June, 1908	117,704
July, 1908	121,878
August, 1908	125,096
September, 1908	126,355
October, 1908	119,431
November, 1908	126,978
December, 1908	127,533
January, 1909	116,932
February, 1909	136,908

In the Atlantic division the total excavation was 702,485 cubic yards, which is 49,480 cubic yards less than that of January. Of this amount 125,284 cubic yards were taken out by steam shovels and 577,201 by dredges.

All previous records in the territory now included in the Central division were broken by an excavation of 1,644,936 cubic yards, an average of 71,506 cubic yards per day. The highest previous monthly record was made in March, 1908, when 1,624,900 cubic yards were removed, a daily average of 62,496. The number of shovels at work during each month was about the same. Of the 1,644,936 cubic yards removed, 1,095,826 cubic yards were taken from the Culebra Cut, 450,182 cubic yards from the Canal prism elsewhere than in the Cut, and 98,928 cubic yards from the Obispo Diversion, which is outside the Canal prism.

In the Pacific division the total excavation was 801,758 cubic yards, which is 168,820 cubic yards more than was taken out in January. Of this amount 109,560 cubic yards were removed by steam shovels and 692,198 by dredges.

CARDINALS WIN FROM ARKANSANS

Thirteen to Five Score in Fast Game of Ball.

St. Louis Nationals Showing More Speed and Enthusiasm This Year.

BRESNAHAN IS RESPONSIBLE.

Little Rock, Ark., March 26.—Manager Bresnahan's band of fighting Cardinals came to the front with a rush in the game with Little Rock, and never let up on Jack O'Connor's aggregation of ball tossers until thirteen runs had been scored, as against five for the locals. Young Folbre who was sent in to pitch against the hard-hitting National leaguers, probably never received a warmer welcome than that which the Cardinals tendered him. Outside of the good work done by Pitcher "Dusty" Rhodes during the five innings he twirled, the hitting of the entire Cardinal team was the feature of the game. A total of fifteen hits were registered by Bresnahan's players.

"Dusty" Rhodes, one of the lowest players in stature on the Cardinal team, had the Little Rock players hypnotized with his wonderful spit ball, but for some unlucky breaks in the third inning would have easily blanked the locals. One after another the local players walked up to the plate and took three swings at the deceptive spitballs being tossed up to the plate by Rhodes, only to return to the bench looking somewhat sheepish. Moore relieved Rhodes in the sixth inning, and outside of the ninth round the locals were never near the scoring line. For three innings Moore had the Little Rock players standing on their heads, and was invincible with the exception of the trouble in the ninth.

Day Was Somewhat Chilly.

The day was somewhat cold for ball playing, the Cardinals wearing their heavy sweaters, and the strong wind blowing across the diamond made it unpleasant for the spectators. As there was a drizzling rain up to noon, Manager Bresnahan called off morning practice, and it was believed the game would have to be postponed. However, Bresnahan announced that his men would be at the park and ready to play, although the diamond was in poor condition, especially so around the base lines.

In the first inning Bobby Byrne started off by getting a hit, and before the round had ended the entire Cardinal team had faced Folbre, Jack O'Connor's crack "southpaw," and five runs had crossed the plate. In the second inning Folbre was again jarred rudely, Byrne being first up and getting on through an error of Third Baseman Perry. The agony of this round was finally brought to a close after seven of the National leaguers had faced the Little Rock twirler and three runs had been scored. Shaw and Evans tallied two more for the Cardinals in the seventh, while three came in the eighth after Girard had been sent in to relieve Folbre.

The Cardinals will again try conclusions with Little Rock tomorrow. Manager Bresnahan will probably work Higginbotham and another of his youngsters against O'Connor's team. Not during the entire season last year was there as much snap and energy displayed as was shown in the game of today. Throughout the entire contest the Cardinals were hustling all the time, fighting for everything and playing ball that should surely land them in a position much more desirable than has been the case for some few years back. was sure landing on the ball served up by Folbre. No less than three times did the big first sacker of the Cardinal team send the sphere to the left field fence for two baggers.

Friday Manager Frank Chance and his champion Cubs visit this city for a game with Little Rock. After the Chicago game comes St. Paul on Saturday, and the Little Rock fans are all hoping that the weather conditions will be favorable for the playing of these exhibition games. Manager Bresnahan was on the third base coaching line in today's game, and several times was there with a call for Umpire Hart, once telling the official not to make a force out of the game. Jack O'Connor chimed in and told Hart that he (Hart) was running the game, and not to pay any attention to anything said to him.

ARBOR DAY IS OBSERVED AT COUNTY COURT HOUSE.

Arbor Day was observed quietly at the court house as well as at other public buildings. County Court Clerk Eli G. Bone is a great admirer of trees, and on the local arbor day he set out four trees in the court house yard. One tree is an oak and although not over two feet high possibly will be a giant in size when all of the neighboring trees are gone. A second tree is a maple, and two others are poplars. The more rapidly growing trees have been planted in places where shade is needed. Mr. Boone secured the trees from his own yard, which is located just across the street from the court house yard.

IN introducing Royal-C Clothing to the clothes buying public—especially to the men who are creating a demand for better clothes—we believe it meets every requirement.

It's honest clothing, made honest, and made just as well as clothing can be under most favorable conditions—and just as far advanced as the art of clothes bulding has progressed.

It's made along lines that insure that comfortable feeling, imparting a quiet dignity, ease and grace that you often notice in the clothes of the good merchant tailor.

Of course, the fabrics are tested all-wool clothes—one or two of a pattern—insuring the wearer that they will never be common, or shown in lower grades.

Producing clothes of this kind costs more—they can never be "cheap clothes"—only just as low in price as good quality will allow.

Your guarantee in buying them is our proposal to replace the clothes if from any cause they prove the least unsatisfactory to you.

Royal-C Clothes in the spring models are being shown and admired by men who are dropping in daily. Come in yourself and look them over, whether you buy or not; you'll be better satisfied for having seen them.

Lesson in Good Manners.

A well-known lawyer is telling a good story about himself and his efforts to correct the manners of his office boy. One morning not long ago the young autocrat blew into the office, and, tossing his cap at a hook, exclaimed:

"Say, Mr. Blank, there's a ball game down at the park today, and I'm going."

Now, the attorney is not a hard-hearted man, and was willing the boy should go, but thought he would teach him a little lesson in good manners.

"Jimmie," he said, "that isn't the way to ask a favor. Now, you come over here and sit down, and I'll show you how to do it."

The boy took the office chair and his employer picked up his cap and stepped outside. He then opened the door softly, and, holding the cap in his hand, said quietly to the small boy in the big chair:

"Please, sir; there is a ball game at the park today; if you can spare me I would like to get away for the afternoon."

In a flash the boy responded: "Why, certainly, Jimmie; and here is 50 cents to pay your way in."—Short Stories.

A Nightmare Yankee

[Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.]

Bill Meacham, private—th Pennsylvania Infantry, escaped prisoner of war, stood at the edge of a wood looking at a house standing in the center of a plantation. Bill's stomach was as empty as a haversack at the end of a two weeks' campaign, and he was wondering if he dare go to the house and ask for something to eat. Would he rather starve or run the risk of going back to that frightful prison pen? Then he looked himself over. He had no head covering whatever, and the last time his hair had been combed was before the fight in which he had been captured three months ago. Half a leg of his trousers was missing as well as the right sleeve of his coat and a part of the left sleeve. As to the coat's skirt, it hung in rag festoons. One old rubber shoe and a bit of blanket constituted his foot covering. It was not danger alone that caused him to hesitate. It was pride.

However, hunger conquered both pride and prudence, and he went to the house. Passing through a flower garden, he suddenly came upon a girl making up a bouquet. On seeing Bill she dropped a pair of big scissors, giving a slight scream at the same time. Bill's hand naturally went up to his head; but, not finding any hat there to doff deferentially, he attempted to propitiate the girl with an admiring smile. It produced an effect similar to that of a dirty faced grinning skeleton. The girl shrank back.

"Don't be afraid of me," pleaded Bill. "I'm harmless, quite harmless." He paused a moment to arrest the ravage of a grayback. "I might as well own up that I'm an escaped prisoner of war."

"A Yankee?"

"Yes, a Yankee, but not a dangerous one just now unless for vermin, and I'd be ever so obliged if you'd give me a bit of corn pone or something to keep me from starving."

Bill's tone was sad, and by this time the girl began to take in the pitiful situation. She was very young and her sympathies easily touched. She stood for a moment thinking, then said:

"We're all loyal to the south up at the house, and if you go there we'd have to give you up. Get under that rosebush, where you will not be seen, and I'll bring you something."

Bill gave her a grateful look, which, though gressive, didn't frighten her so much this time. She went toward the house, and he crawled under the bush. Presently she came back with some scraps she had gathered from the breakfast table rolled in a napkin, gave them to Bill and told him he'd better be off. Bill, in his gratitude forgetting himself, advanced to clasp her hand, but she darted back with a bit of a shriek, then, seeing that she had hurt his feelings, said:

"It isn't you I'm afraid of; it's the vermin."

Well, Bill backed away from her so as not to show the remains of his protruding shirt tail and went on his way.

When the war ended Bill got a commission in the regular army. During the administration of President Grant he was on duty in Washington, which meant that he lounged most of the day and attended social functions in the evening. It was not long before he married the daughter of a southern congressman, and a very happy match he made.

One morning he kissed his wife and went to his office in the war department, as usual. About 11 o'clock Mrs. Meacham was informed by a maid that there was a tramp at the door who insisted on seeing the lady of the house. "But I wouldn't advise you to go down; he's the worst looking beast I ever saw," Mrs. Meacham sent the maid back to tell the man that she was busy, and the maid returned with the information that the man was bound to see the lady, and if she didn't come down he would go up. If there had been telephones in those days Mrs. Meacham would have called the police. But telephones had not yet been invented, and there was no man in the house. Mrs. Meacham finally determined to go down. There in the hall stood the tramp. He wore no hat on his uncombed hair, but little more than half of his clothing was available. One foot was incased in a piece of blanket, the other in a rubber shoe. Mrs. Meacham's terror was somewhat mollified by seeing one or two brass buttons on his coat.

"My husband is in the war department," she gasped. "Go to him. He'll provide for you and see that you are taken care of by the government."

The man suddenly put his hand to his hair and clinched something. "For heaven's sake," cried the lady, "don't bring vermin into this house! Go away! Call on Major Meacham. He'll attend to your case."

"It's hard lines," whined the tramp, "when a man can't get a crust in his own house."

"Good gracious, ma'am," exclaimed the maid, "he's mad!"

The tramp looked at Mrs. Meacham and smiled, a horrible grin which, once seen, would never be forgotten. "Don't you remember the Yankee you fed one day in the flower garden down in Dixie?"

Yes, Mrs. Meacham remembered him. She had never forgotten him.

"Oh, heavens," she wailed, "have I married that horrible nightmare of a Yankee? Why didn't you tell me?"

"Tell you! How would I have ever got you if I had?"

Major Meacham did not kiss his wife again till he had had a Turkish bath.

THE MAKING OF A NEW YORKER

By O. HENRY.

[Copyright, 1908, by the S. S. McClure Co.]

BESIDES many other things, Raggles was a poet. He was called a tramp, but that was only an elliptical way of saying that he was a philosopher, an artist, a traveler, a naturalist and a discoverer. But, most of all, he was a poet. In all his life he never wrote a line of verse. He lived his poetry. His Odyssey would have been a linerick had it been written. But, to linger with the primary proposition, Raggles was a poet.

Raggles' specialty had been driven to ink and paper would have been sonnets to the cities. He studied cities as women study their reflections in mirrors, as children study the glue and sawdust of a dislocated doll, as the men who write about wild animals study the cages in the zoo. A city to Raggles was not merely a pile of bricks and mortar peopled by a certain number of inhabitants. It was a thing with a soul characteristic and distinct, an individual conglomeration of life, with its own peculiar essence, flavor and feeling. Two thousand miles to the north and south, east and west Raggles wandered in poetic fervor, taking the cities to his breast. He footed it on dusty roads or sped magnificently in freight cars, counting time as of no account. And when he had found the heart of a city and listened to its secret confession he strayed on, restless, to another. Fickle Raggles! But perhaps he had not met the civic corporation that could engage and hold his critical fancy.

Through the ancient poets we have learned that the cities are feminine. So they were to Poet Raggles, and his mind carried a concrete and clear conception of the figure that symbolized and typified each one that he had wooed.

Chicago seemed to swoop down upon him with a breezy suggestion of Mrs. Partington, plumes and patchouli, and to disturb his rest with a soaring and beautiful song of future promise. But Raggles would awake to a sense of shivering cold and a haunting impression of ideals lost in a depressing aura of potato salad and fish.

Thus Chicago affected him. Perhaps there are vagueness and inaccuracy in the description, but that is Raggles' fault. He should have recorded his sensations in magazine poems.

Pittsburg impressed him as the play of "Othello" performed in the Russian language in a railroad station by Dock-stader's minstrels. A royal and generous lady this Pittsburg, though, homely, hearty, with flushed face, washing the dishes in a silk dress and white kid slippers and bidding Raggles sit before the roaring fireplace and drink champagne with his pig's feet and fried potatoes.

New Orleans had simply gazed down upon him from a balcony. He could see her pensive, stary eyes and catch the flutter of her fan, and that was all. Only once he came face to face with her. It was at dawn, when she was flushing the red bricks of the banquet with a pall of water. She laughed and hummed a chansonnette and filled Raggles' shoes with ice cold water. Alions!

Boston construed herself to the poetic Raggles in an erratic and singular way. It seemed to him that he had drunk cold tea and that the city was a white, cold cloth that had been bound tightly around his brow to spur him to some unknown but tremendous mental effort. And, after all, he came to shovel snow for a livelihood, and the cloth, becoming wet, tightened its knots and could not be removed.

Indefinite and unintelligible ideas, you will say, but your disapprobation should be tempered with gratitude, for these are poets' fancies—and suppose you had come upon them in verse!

One day Raggles came and laid siege to the heart of the great city of Manhattan. She was the greatest of all, and he wanted to learn her note in the scale, to taste and appraise and classify and solve and label her and arrange her with the other cities that had given him up the secret of their individuality. And here we cease to be Raggles' translator and become his chronicler.

Raggles landed from a ferryboat one morning and walked into the core of the town with the blasé air of a cosmopolitan. He was dressed with care to play the role of an "unidentified man." No country, race, class, clique, union, party, clan or bowling association could have claimed him. His clothing, which had been donated to him piecemeal by citizens of different height, but same number of inches around the heart, was not yet as uncomfortable to his figure as those specimens of raiment, self measured, that are railroaded to you by transcontinental tailors with a suit case, suspenders, silk handkerchief and pearl studs as a bonus. Without money, as a poet should be, but with the ardor of an astronomer discovering a new star in the chorus of the Milky way or a man who has seen ink suddenly flow from his fountain pen, Raggles wandered into the great city.

Late in the afternoon he drew out of the roar and commotion with a look of dumb terror on his countenance. He was defeated, puzzled, discomfited, frightened. Other cities had been to him as long primer to read, as country maidens quickly to fathom, as send-price-of-subscription-with-answer rebuses to solve, as oyster cocktails to swallow, but here was one as cold, glittering, serene, impossible as a four carat diamond in a window to a lover outside fingering daintily in his pocket his ribbon counter salary.

The greetings of the other cities he had known—their homespun kindness, their human gamut of rough charity, friendly curses, garrulous curiosity and easily estimated credulity or indifference. This city of Manhattan gave him no clue. It was walled against him. Like a river of adamant, it flowed past him in the streets. Never an eye was turned upon him. No voice spoke to him. His heart yearned for the clasp of Pittsburg's sooty hand on his shoulder, for Chicago's menacing but social yawp in his ear, for the pale and eleemosynary stare through the Bostonian eyeglass, even for the precipitate but unmalicious boot toe of Louisville or St. Louis.

On Broadway Raggles, successful suitor of many cities, stood, bashful, like any country swain. For the first time he experienced the poignant humiliation of being ignored. And when he tried to reduce this brilliant, swiftly changing, ice cold city to a formula he failed utterly. Poet though he was, it offered him no color, no similes, no points of comparison, no flaw in its polished facets, no handle by which he could hold it up and view its shape and structure, as he familiarly and often contemptuously had done with other towns. The houses were interminable ramparts looped for defense; the people were bright but bloodless specters passing in sinister and selfish array.

The thing that weighed heaviest on Raggles' soul and clogged his poet's fancy was the spirit of absolute egotism that seemed to saturate the people as toys are saturated with paint. Each one that he considered appeared a monster of abominable and insolent conceit. Humanity was gone from them. They were toddling idols of stone and varnish, worshipping themselves and greedily for, though oblivious of, worship from their fellow graven images. Frozen, cruel, implacable, impervious, cut to an identical pattern, they hurried on their ways like statues brought by some miracles to motion, while soul and feeling lay unaroused in the reluctant marble.

Gradually Raggles became conscious of certain types. One was an elderly gentleman with a snow white, short beard, pink, unwrinkled face and stony, sharp blue eyes, attired in the fashion of a gilded youth, who seemed to personify the city's wealth, ripeness and frigid unconcern. Another type was a woman, tall, beautiful, clear as a steel engraving, goddess-like, calm, clothed like the princesses of old, with eyes as coldly blue as the reflection of sunlight on a glacier. And another was a byproduct of this town of marionettes—a broad, swaggering, grim, threateningly sedate fellow, with a jaw as large as a harvested wheat-field, the complexion of a baptized infant and the knuckles of a prize fighter. This type leaned against cigar signs and viewed the world with frapped countenances.

A poet is a sensitive creature, and Raggles soon shriveled in the bleak embrace of the undecipherable. The chill, sphinx-like, ironical, illegible, unnatural, ruthless expression of the city left him downcast, and bewildered. Had it no heart? Better the wood pile, the scolding of vinegar faced housewives at back doors, the kindly sprees of bartenders behind provincial free lunch counters, the amiable truculence of rural constables, the kicks, arrests and happy-go-lucky chances of the other vulgar, loud, crude cities than this freezing heartlessness.

Raggles summoned his courage and sought aims from the populace. Unheeding, regardless, they passed on without the wink of an eyelash to testify that they were conscious of his existence. And then he said to himself that this fair but pitiless city of Manhattan was without a soul, that its inhabitants were mannikins moved by wires and springs and that he was alone in a great wilderness.

Raggles started to cross the street. There was a blast, a roar, a hissing and a crash as something struck him and hunched him over and over six yards from where he had been. As he was coming down like the stick of a rocket the earth and all the cities thereof turned to a fractured dream.

Raggles opened his eyes. First an odor made itself known to him, an odor of the earliest spring flowers of paradise. And then a hand soft as a falling petal touched his brow. Bending over him was the woman clothed like the princess of old, with blue eyes, now soft and humid with human sympathy. Under his head on the pavement were silks and furs. With Raggles' hat in his hand and with his face pinked but ever from a vehement burst of oratory against reckless driving stood the elderly gentleman who personified the city's wealth and ripeness. From a nearby cage hurried the byproduct with the vast jaw and baby complexion, bearing a glass full of a crimson fluid that suggested delightful possibilities.

"Drink this, sport," said the byproduct, holding the glass to Raggles' lips. Hundreds of people huddled around in a moment, their faces wearing the deepest concern. Two flattering and

Five years ago the Science of Salesmanship was not—it was only an idea in a man's mind.

The man with this big idea was Arthur Frederick Sheldon. His idea and the use he has made of it has earned him a national reputation as a business educator.

Thousands and thousands of good men all over this country give A. F. Sheldon credit for helping them to earn bigger success.

Arthur Frederick Sheldon had been a salesman for fifteen years before he formulated the Science of Salesmanship.

He learned salesmanship by experience.

He got his training in the good old "college of hard knocks."

Twenty years ago when he was a country school teacher in a backwoods Michigan village, Sheldon listened to a specialty salesman's selling talk with wide-eyed interest.

It was the first one he had ever heard, and it stirred something deep within him. In about two weeks he had dropped the rod and taken to the road.

He was successful almost from the start, and he earned his way through the University of Michigan Law School by working as a salesman during vacations.

Gave Up Law for Salesmanship.

Sheldon did not practice law very long; he had proved himself a real salesman. His former employer wanted him back, and the call to the battle of business was too strong for him to resist. Within a year or two he was made sales manager of the concern. A few years more and he was President and Sales Manager of a publishing house of his own. A little later he had organized two more companies, and was at the head of them.

From the time Mr. Sheldon received his first set of samples it was his ambition to reach the top in his profession.

He realized that in order to do this he must make a thorough study of the subject and reap the benefit of other men's experience as the student of medicine profits by the experience and research of scientific men through many generations.

When he was studying law he found text books to help him in the mastery of the problems, but he looked in vain for books that would help him and other salesmen to become better salesmen.

Here was the great profession of salesmanship, practiced by hundreds of thousands of men, absolutely without a literature of its own!

No Study-Books for Salesmen.

A man could not study the principles of salesmanship as he could study the principles of law, engineering or medicine, because no one had ever taken the trouble to formulate and correlate these principles and put them into a definite, usable form.

After long study and observation, Mr. Sheldon's big idea crystallized, and he resolved to undertake the work of formulating the Science of Salesmanship, and of teaching it to others by correspondence.

Most of the people to whom he spoke about his plans for writing and teaching the Science of Salesmanship laughed at it, and said it was impossible. But the Science of Salesmanship was formulated and written, and printed into lesson booklets. After that it was offered for sale—not only offered for sale—it was sold.

In five years this man with the idea has sold more than 36,500 courses in the Science of Salesmanship.

The American business community has paid Sheldon a million and a quarter dollars for his success-building, salary-increasing ideas.

Scientific Basis for Success in Salesmanship—Great Money-Making Opportunities of Salesmen.

Trade rests upon confidence. Before a man can sell goods he must inspire confidence.

Confidence rests upon personality.

Personality depends upon two great foundation stones: First sterling character; Second, good health. These rest upon the bedrock of true education—with emphasis on the word true.

True education consists in developing the positive, desirable qualities of the body, the mind and the soul—the qualities which stand for power and efficiency.

Sheldon Students in Demand

Our students are entitled to the free service of our Employment Division. We do not guarantee to get a man a position, but the fact is that Sheldon graduates are in such demand that very few of them ever ask for any help in securing positions. We are prepared, however, to render assistance to graduates and inasmuch as we have on file as a rule three times as many requests for men as we have men seeking positions, we usually have no difficulty in landing an applicant in a place that is satisfactory to him.

Four factors and only four enter into every sale: The Salesman, the Customer, the Goods and the Sale itself.

The first, the most important thing, therefore, is to make the salesman strong, to give him power. This is done by The Sheldon School system of true education, the course of correspondence study being known as the Science of Successful Salesmanship.

A sale is a mental thing or process—the intelligent co-operation of one mind with another.

A sale is brought about, therefore, not only by technical knowledge alone but by the power of persuasion—the ability to persuade another to your way of thinking.

gorgeous policemen got into the circle and pressed back the overplus of Samaritans. An old lady in a black shawl spoke loudly of emporium; a newsboy slipped one of his papers beneath Raggles' elbow where it lay on the muddy pavement. A brisk young man with a notebook was asking for names.

A bell clanged a lane through the crowd. A cool surgeon slipped into the midst of affairs.

"How do you feel, old man?" asked the surgeon, stooping easily to his task. The princess of silks and satins wiped a red drop or two from Raggles' brow with a fragrant cobweb.

"Me?" said Raggles, with a seraphic smile. "I feel fine."

He had found the heart of his new city.

In three days they let him leave his cot for the convalescent ward in the hospital. He had been in there an hour when the attendants heard sounds of conflict. Upon investigation they

And the power to persuade is the result of a masterful personality, and of that only. Who does not want a masterful personality?

The Sheldon Course develops such a personality, and it does so by teaching six things, as follows:

1. Character Building—By pointing out the desirable faculties and qualities of the individual which stand for strength and power, and giving definite, specific methods for developing them.

2. Health Building—By teaching how to think right, breathe right, eat right, and exercise right.

3. Character Reading—By teaching the outward signs that indicate character—contour of face, expression, tone of voice, emphasis, gesture, etc.

4. Business Logic—How to analyze a proposition, and from the analysis build a selling talk that will sell.

5. Business Psychology—How to bring about Attention, Interest, Desire and Resolve—the four mental steps in every sale.

6. General Business Topics—"Cost with Relation to Selling Price," "System," "Legal Point in Buying and Selling," "Suggestion," "Self-Education," etc.

Big Money for Good Salesmen

Salesmanship is a profession and the highest paid of all professions. There is more money in selling than in anything else—if you can sell. Salesmen virtually set their own salaries, because they are producers; and in proportion as they produce are they paid.

On the salesman—the business man—there are no limits set. As he can produce, in that proportion can he take. Wealth—material power—and all the good things that go with them, await the man who can learn to be a great salesman—the man who can create business.

But this wonderful power to create business—this masterful personality that persuades—from whence does it come? It comes from the man himself from the development of the latent forces within him. All growth is from within outward. All successful men are men of strong personality. And all normal men have the material out of which to develop strong personality.

The Sheldon School has helped 36,500 men develop their power to persuade.

It can help you if you are willing to receive the help. Just mail the coupon today. You place yourself under no obligation. It costs you nothing to investigate.

Results Count—Ask Any of These Men

Increase Income $25 a Month.

Mr. Theodore W. Price, 56 Woodford street, Owensboro, Kentucky, wrote us a little while back:

"I have added $25 a month to my salary as a result of applying your teachings. I feel that the course would be cheap at ten times the price."

Shows How to Get Confidence.

Mr. Fred W. Powers, a Jeweler and Optician, of Ashland, Kentucky, wrote an inquirer recently as follows:

"I have succeeded greatly since taking the Sheldon Course. It cannot fail to develop the latent energy of any man who will study it and adopt its principles. It will make a bigger, broader, better man of you; it will give you the power of gaining the confidence of others. I am always glad to speak a good word for The Sheldon School."

Interesting and Profitable Study.

Mr. Charles F. Strassner, Sales Manager of the Hoge-Montgomery Shoe Co., Frankfort, Kentucky, says that their salesmen took the course, and all but three are graduates of The Sheldon School, and the Course has been of great practical benefit to them. He writes: "There is no doubt but what the study is beneficial. It is something we all know, but the teachings of the Sheldon School are so forcibly expressed that they cannot fail to interest and improve any salesman who wishes to better his condition."

Mr. Strassner graduated nearly four years ago. You might ask him if he is still of the same opinion.

Helped Build Business.

I have been selling goods for eight years, and I must say your Course has benefited me greatly. It has shown me many weak points and how to eliminate them, and helped me build up business in my territory from $15,000 to $65,000 a year.—J. E. HORTON, Salesman, Graton & Knight Mfg. Co., 282 Lysander Street, Detroit, Mich.

WOMAN'S BEAUTY.

It Comes Only to Those Who Take Care of Their Hair.

Have you seen a pretty face with regular features, clear skin, pearly teeth and plenty of animation and vivacity, and yet remarked that there was something lacking that really made the individual less charming than her sister of plainer possessions? A moment's study of such a face will show you that it is a want of luxuriant hair which makes the difference.

The woman who wishes to retain her youth must look after her hair—the woman with scant, unattractive hair is never admired.

Society women realize the truth of this statement and that is why so many of New York's loveliest women demand that Parisian Sage be used by their hairdressers.

Parisian Sage is now on sale in nearly every town of consequence in America, and has enormous sales wherever it has been introduced.

It is guaranteed by Gilbert's drug store to cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

It will make any woman's harsh and unattractive hair soft, lustrous and luxuriant in a few days. It is the ideal, delightful, rejuvenating tonic that makes hair grow, it is not sticky or greasy, but on the other hand is most pleasant and daintily perfumed.

News of Theatres

"Paid in Full" will be seen at the Kentucky theater Tuesday evening, the 30th. Acton Davies, the well-known writer, says of the play: "Paid in Full" scored an immense success last night—one of the sensational successes of the season. Its boldness, its simplicity and its originality all told in its favor. Here at last was a young American playwright brave enough to dramatize a Harlem flat and its occupants; he had taken his theme right out of every day life on the upper west side and played his dramatic cards so well that he held his base first night audience in his hand and not only interested them intensely, but gave them in one act both a great surprise and a real thrill."

George Broadhurst's interesting drama, "The Man of the Hour," will be seen Wednesday, March 31, at the Kentucky theater. The play comes with a record of two years' run in the Savoy theater, New York City, twenty weeks in the Illinois theater, Chicago, and twenty weeks in the Tremont theater, Boston. The cast to be seen here is said to be the New York company. One of the remarkable things about this play has been its appeal to women. The gentler sex is generally supposed to take no interest whatever in the things that have formed the subject matter of the campaign of muck-raking to which the American public has been subjected in the last five years; yet, "The Man of the Hour" often described as a "dramatized political document" has made a success with women as well as with the sex who do the voting at the polls.

After an absence from Louisville of several years, during which they seem to have lost none of their popularity with local playgoers, Murray and Mack, the quaint Irish comedians, opened a week's engagement at the Masonic theater yesterday before two unusually large Monday audiences, says the Louisville Post. The Lenten season and the rain seemed to have little effect on the proportions or spirits of the audience, and probably no team of comedy makers who have appeared at this house have been given a greater measure of spontaneous welcome and encouragement than was accorded these two.

The music of "The Sunny Side of Broadway" was entirely composed by Mr. Boyle Woolfolk, a Louisville man well known in Paducah. He produced "The Traveling Man" here last year and made a hit with it.

CUMBERLAND RIVER RATE WAR RESULTS IN CUTTING.

The Ryman line boat, J. B. Richardson, and the Tyner line boat, H. W. Buttorff, are engaged in a rate war for Cumberland river trade. The J. B. Richardson began the slashing of rates Wednesday and received passengers and freight at the following rates: Passengers for Nashville $2, a cut from $4; freight 5 cents a hundred pounds, cut from 25 cents and 30 cents a hundred; passengers for Clarksville $1.50, cut from $3.25. Rates to all intermediate points are reduced in proportion. The H. W. Buttorff has since adopted the cut. Both the Richardson and the Buttorff left at noon Wednesday for Nashville.

THEY INJURE CHILDREN

Ordinary Cathartics and Pills and Harsh Physic Cause Distressing Complaints.

You cannot be over-careful in the selection of medicine for children.
Only the very gentlest bowel medicine should ever be given. Ordinary pills, cathartics and purgatives are too apt to do more harm than good.
They cause griping, nausea and other distressing after-effects that are frequently health destroying and a life-lasting annoyance.

We personally recommend and guarantee Rexall Orderlies as the safest and most dependable remedy for constipation and associate bowel disorders. We have such absolute faith in the supreme virtues of this remedy that we sell it on our guarantee of money back in every instance where it fails to give entire satisfaction, and we use all in need of such medicine to try it at our risk.

Rexall Orderlies contain an entirely new ingredient which is odorless, tasteless and colorless. It embraces all the best qualities of the soothing, laxative strengthening and healing remedial active principles of the best known intestinal regulator tonics.

Rexall Orderlies are extremely pleasant to take, are particularly prompt and agreeable in action, may be taken at any time, day or night;
do not cause diarrhoea, nausea, grip-ing, excessive looseness, or other undesirable effects. They have a very natural action upon the glands and organs with which they come in contact, acting as a positive and regulative tonic upon the bowels, dry muscular coat of the bowels, remove irritation, dryness and soreness of the bowels,
and restore the normal healthy action.

Rexall Orderlies not only cure constipation, but they remove the cause of this ailment. They also overcome the necessity of constantly taking laxatives to keep the bowels in normal condition.

There is really no similar medicine
so good as Rexall Orderlies, especially for children, aged and delicate persons. They are prepared in tablet form and in two sizes of packages;
12 tablets, 10c, and 36 tablets, 25c.

CHAPTER XXVII.

MRS. SPANGLER GIVES A LUNCHEON.
WHEN Senators Peabody and Stevens had gone Langdon and Bud went over the situation together and concluded that their opponents had no means of defeating Langdon's program—that, after all, Peabody might really have meant his words of surrender.

"But they might try foul play. Better stay right here in the capitol the rest of the day," suggested Bud.
Langdon scoffed at the idea.

Haines bustled away to get a few mouthfuls of lunch to fortify himself for a busy afternoon—one that was going to be far busier than he imagined.

The telephone bell rang at the senator's desk. It was Mrs. Spangler's voice that spoke.

"Senator Langdon," she said, "Carolina and Hope Georgia are here at my home for luncheon, and we all want you to join us."

"Sorry I cannot accept," answered the Mississippian, "but I am to make an important speech this afternoon."

"Oh, yes, I know. The girls and I are coming to hear it. But you have two hours' time, and if you come we can all go over to the senate together.
Now, senator, humor us a little. Don't disappoint the girls and me. We can all drive over to the capitol in my carriage."

The planter hesitated, then replied.
"All right; I'll be over, but it mustn't be a very long luncheon."

"Gone to eat; back by 3 o'clock," he scratched quickly on a pad on the senator's desk and departed.

Mrs. Spangler's luncheons were equally as popular in Washington as Senator Langdon's dinners. The Mississippian and his daughters enjoyed the delicacies spread lavishly before them.

Time passed quickly. The old planter enjoyed seeing his daughters have so happy a time, and he was not inasmuch to the charm of his hostess' conversation, for Mrs. Spangler had studied carefully the art of ingratiating herself with her guests.
Suddenly realizing that he had probably reached the limit of the time he could spare, the senator drew out his watch.

"What a stunning job you wear," quickly spoke Mrs. Spangler, reaching out her hand and taking the watch from her guest's hands as the case snapped open.

"Oh, that's Carolina's doing," laughed Langdon. "She said the old gold chain that my grandfather left me was—"

"Why, how lovely," murmured Mrs.
Spangler, glancing at the watch.
"We have plenty of time yet. Won't have to hurry."

Your time is the same as mine," she added, nodding her head toward a French renaissance clock on the black marble mantel.

As the hostess did this she de-tly turned back the hands of the senator's watch
thirty-five minutes.

"Do you care
senator's watch,"
Mrs. Spangler asked as her guests concluded their repast, "if the young ladies do not object?"

Langdon inclined his head gratefully and laughed.

"They wouldn't be southern girls, I reckon, if they didn't want to see a man have everything to make him happy—er, I beg pardon, Mrs. Spangler, I mean, comfortable. Nobody that's your guest could be unhappy."

The hostess beamed on the chival-rous southerner.

Langdon drew forth a thick black perfecto and settled back luxuriously in his chair, after another glance at Mrs. Spangler's clock. He was absorbed in a mental resume of his forthcoming speech and did not hear the next words of the woman, addressed pointedly to his daughters.

"Do you know, really, why this luncheon was given today?" she queried.
Then she continued before Carolina and Hope Georgia could formulate reply.

"Because your father and I wanted to take this opportunity to announce to you our engagement."

The speaker smiled her sweetest smile.

The two girls gazed at each other in uncontrollable amazement, then at Mrs.
Spangler, then at their father, who had turned partly away from the table and was gazing absently at the ceiling.

Hope Georgia was the first to regain her voice.

"Oh, Mrs. Spangler," she ejaculated,
"you are very kind to marry father, but—"

"What's that?" exclaimed the senator, roused from his thoughts by his youngest daughter's words and thrusting himself forward.

Mrs. Spangler laid her hand on his arm.

"Oh, senator, I have just told the dear girls that you had asked me to marry you—that we were soon to be married," she said archly, looking him straight in the eye. She clasped her hands and murmured, "I am so happy!"

The hero of Crawfordville tried to speak, but he could not. He stared at his hostess, who smiled the smile of the budding debutante. His own open mouthed astonishment was reflected in the faces of Carolina and Hope Georgia as they observed their father's expression. He forgot he was in Washington. He did not know he was a senator. The fact that he had ever been thought of making a speech was furthest from his mind.

What did it all mean? Had Mrs.
Spangler gone suddenly insane? His own comfort, if the use is without direct injury to the public, is one of a citizen's natural and inalienable rights, guaranteed to him by the constitution. Under our institutions there is no room for that inquisitorial and protective spirit which seeks to regulate the conduct of men in matters in themselves indifferent and to make them conform to a standard, not of the citizen's choosing, but of the choosing of the law-giver."

The effect of the decision will be far reaching, as many towns in Kentucky where prohibition prevails have passed similar ordinances and have sought to prevent the bringing into the town of whisky beyond certain quantities.

Leads All the Rest.
To the stored credit of the United States be it said, only this country has sent to the marketplace sufferers to date more money than the public collections of Italy itself. The South American countries come next, then England with $600,000, against our $3,600,000. That Japan has sent more than Germany, Turkey than Austria, Australia than Russia, are other surprises.—New York World.

Notice.
Notice is hereby given to publishers of school text books that the Kentucky State School Book Commission will receive at the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction in

MBN'S RIGHT

JUDGE BARKER HANDS DOWN
IMPORTANT OPINION.

Local Ordinance Bridges Personal Liberties—Court of Appeals Decisions.

Frankfort, Ky., March 26.—A man's right to have whisky for his own use, if that use is without injury to the public, is sustained by the court of appeals in an opinion written by Judge Barker. The right of a citizen to sell a man for having whisky in his possession, when it is not shown that he had it for the purpose of selling it or giving it to another, is denied. The case came here on appeal from the Jessamine circuit court. Peter Campbell was arrested and fined $100 in the police court for violation of a city ordinance making it illegal
